Education and Public Engagement

The LPI Education and Public Engagement team collaborates with multiple partners nationwide to make current Earth and planetary science content available to all audiences. We strive to foster lifelong learning and a commitment to science to benefit the public in our local community, region, and nation.

- Collaborates with scientists to assist them in their education and public engagement efforts
- Disseminates planetary science content and resources, infused with research-based best practices
- Conducts space science experiences for diverse audiences

“LPI’s public engagement programs will have huge impact across the country as we work with our communities.”
